

Dr. Chen Nadler

Oral Medicine Specialist with sub-speciality training at the University of Toronto in the Oral Radiology department. During the recent years, Dr. Nadler has expanded the radiology education program both to under-graduate and graduates students, has broadened the consult service and is currently conducting cutting-edge research projects including educational, clinical and computerized research. Her main research interests are: image analysis, salivary gland imaging, specifically Sialo-CBCT and Ultrasound, bone lesions interpretation, optimal imaging as well as educational research.

Received her BMedSc Cum Laude, and DMD from the Hebrew university, Hadassah school of Dental Medicine, Received her MSc, PhD and Post-Doctorate from the Microbiology department, Faculty of Medicine, The Hebrew University. Received the Abisch-Frenkel Foundation grant, employed the Resident-Researcher 5yr program. Senior resident at the Oral Medicine Specialty program. Senior lecturer at the Hebrew University. Reviewer for the Oral Section at the Oral Surgery, Oral Medicine, Oral Pathology, Oral Radiology and the Quintessence international Journals, Member of the Israeli Radiology Association (ISRA), the Israeli Oral Medicine Association (ISOM), the European Academy of Dento-Maxillofacial Radiology (EADMFR), the American Academy of Oral Maxillofacial Radiology (AAOMR) and the International Dento-Maxillofacial Radiology (IADMFR).